Abstract

This research was aimed at revealing students' perceptions towards language instructions by the lecturers in English learning process. The study also intended to find out lecturers' treatment to make the students speak English during learning process. The researcher employed a descriptive study in this research with two instruments used, questionnaire and interview. This research was conducted at the English Language Education department of Universitas Muhammadiyah Purwokerto with 32 students participating. The use of Bahasa Indonesia by the lecturers eased them to comprehend difficult tasks and projects. The use of Bahasa Indonesia becomes the best preference for the students during the English learning processes. To cope with the minimum use of English in English class, the lecturers optimized its use during the learning process. Hence, the students can better learn how to use English as the medium of interaction during the English class.
