This study aims to find out EFL students' problems with online learning during covid-19 pandemic. This research is a quantitative research using a questionnaire as a data collection technique. Respondents in this study were 4th semester students majoring in English education at a university in Purwokerto. The sample in this study was 50 students, and the researcher used purposive sampling. The results of this study indicate that the problems faced by EFL students when studying online during the covid-19 pandemic is that they should use certain applications to complete their assignments while studying online. In addition, there are also some lecturers who rarely provide quick response/feedback in online learning which makes students frustrated when studying online, and online learning costs are more expensive than face-to-face learning plus cheaper computers/PCs/laptops do not support the use of online learning. But, online learning also brings convenience to students. For example, online learning can be done anytime and anywhere which makes the learning process more organize.

Keywords : EFL, online learning, students problems.
